

Seldom Party

Seldom Party's Biography
Jan 2012

After seven years in London, another in Hong Kong growing a beard and four more helping Aborigines record desert reggae in Central Australia, Seldom Party now lives, writes and records melodramatic haunting folk in the rolling hills of Victoria.

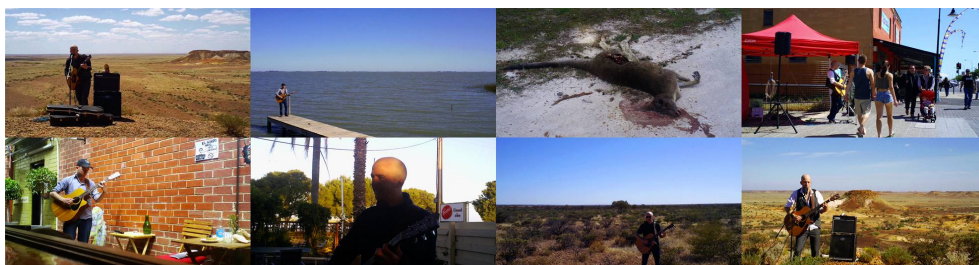

Lying somewhere between the post rock of Sigur Ros, the finger picking of John Martyn, the tender side of The Middle East and the beauty of Laura Veirs, Seldom Party's 'post-folk' shows early signs of a bright future.

Since the release of SINATRA in 2011, Seldom Party has received radio airplay here in Australia thanks to triplej, ABC Radio National, AMRAP and numerous community stations. Also Internationally on BBC Introducing and on various College stations throughout the US, from LA to Iowa.

Seldom Party saw out 2011 taking his live show, complete with knives and balloons, to an eclectic mix of outdoor, indoor, improvised and established venues between Darwin, Adelaide and Melbourne.

The first video from this SINATRA HIGHWAY tour is now up on youtube and seldomparty.com, to the song "Raise Your Hand":

"As two of us reside the rest of us divide apart - you laugh as that's impossible. As that's impossible you raise your glass instead
Place the hatchet in my head and turn"
